

Important remarks before the final upload of your paper

Publishing Process & Creative Common License:

The conference proceedings will be published shortly after the conference as open-access by the library server of the Technical University of Munich (MediaTUM). This guarantees that the conference proceedings will be indexed by Google Scholar and other search engines. Each paper will be provided with an individual Digital Object Identifier (DOI). The conference papers will be published by following the by-sa 4.0 Creative Common license, which is an open-access compliant license type. Thus, by uploading a final version of your paper and by presenting it during the ORC2021 conference, you agree on publishing your paper by the stated CC license type via MediaTUM. In addition, the authors have all rights to distribute and share their papers by other channels, such as their institute website or ResearchGate. For any further questions please contact the conference secretariat at orc2021@tum.de.

Metadata of your Paper

In order to improve the visibility of the conference proceedings within Google Scholar and other search engines, we recommend to insert the relevant key information of your paper into the property data of your document. These so-called metadata of a document are helpful to improve the visibility of your work. Therefore, we encourage you to enter the main information (title, conference tag, keywords and authors) into your Word document before converting your paper into a PDF file. Subsequent figure displays the location and content we recommend to insert within the file properties.

Once the Word document has been converted into a PDF file, we recommend to check if the metadata are successfully stored and displayed within the PDF file. In order to do so, you can open your PDF document in e.g. Adobe Acrobat and go to File -> Properties -> Description. It will open a window that displays the different components of the metadata of your PDF document.

For any further questions please contact the conference secretariat at orc2021@tum.de.
